“The light fractured through the vertical stems at a low angle, the shade abstracting the forms - the rhythm, sharp and jazzy. It was all at once bright and mysterious and full of delicate colour. This great life force. This delicate variety. I made a series of drawings at different times of day, that I later formalised into this design for flat weave. The nature of the flatweave structure perfectly suited to the production of these shapes and the variety in the traditional dyeing process giving the colour its vibration.”
